

No.
21

BECAUSE WE REBUILT.

FOR SIX DAYS after Hurricane Sandy, photographer Natan Dvir documented the waterlogged, the flooded, the piled-up, the overturned, the uprooted. A year later, he revisited the same scenes at the same times of day.

CLINT RAINEY

The Battery Park Underpass, Manhattan.

It was reopened by November 14, 2012.

Battery Gardens restaurant, Manhattan, which took in ten feet of water.

It hosted its first wedding since the storm on November 9, 2012.

Beach 119th Street, Rockaway Park.

A year later, the street was almost back to normal.